About the Department of Justice

The Department of Justice formed on 1 July 2017 following the amalgamation of the Department of Corrective Services and the Department of the Attorney General.

The Department comprises Corrective Services, Court and Tribunal Services, the Parliamentary Counsel's Office, Public Advocate, Public Trustee, Registry of Births, Deaths and Marriages and State Solicitor's Office.

Its mission is to work for a fair, just, and safe community for all Western Australians.

The role of the Corrective Services Division is to contribute to community safety by upholding the integrity of custodial and non-custodial sentences; and positively influencing offender behaviour to reduce re-offending and encourage law-abiding lifestyles.

Corrective Services aims to provide an environment that encourages self-respect and respect for others, and which embraces diverse cultural backgrounds and provides best opportunities for positive change.

Banksia Hill Detention Centre

Corrective Services manages the only custodial facility for young people aged between 10 and 17 years at the Banksia Hill Detention Centre in Canning Vale.

Young people only go into detention as a last resort or when the offence they have committed is extremely serious.

Being held in detention is often very upsetting for the young person and their family.

The role of a Youth Custodial Officer

As a Youth Custodial Officer, you will play an important role in improving outcomes for young people in detention. On average, around 75 per cent of young people in detention in Western Australia are Aboriginal Australians.

The right people for this job are resilient and enjoy working with young people – you may have done this professionally, voluntarily, through your family network or from other experiences. As a Youth Custodial Officer, you will balance care and control. You will be empathetic and encouraging yet will still set important boundaries to maintain a safe environment.

You will be a role model and work with young people and their families who have often experienced significant trauma. Youth Custodial Officers come from a variety of different backgrounds and are fair, non-judgemental, and dependable.

The operational environment will require you to wear a uniform and strictly follow procedures and policy to create an environment where young people are safe and supported to lead law-abiding, productive lives.

A Youth Custodial Officer is a person who:

is responsible for the safety, security, care, wellbeing and developmental needs of young people in custody works with young people in challenging situations by diffusing and managing conflict is an excellent communicator with active listening skills possesses attributes such as empathy, resilience and a positive mindset can work with young people from Aboriginal or diverse cultural backgrounds works well in a team and enjoys the camaraderie that comes with being a Youth Custodial Officer ensures Banksia Hill Detention Centre is a safe and supportive environment for young people and staff

You can come from a range of backgrounds and be a great Youth Custodial Officer.

Looking back at your work experience, we're interested in seeing how you've worked well in a team. We're looking for clear, effective communicators who can take the initiative and solve challenges. We want to hear about how you have shown you have compassion and empathy for other people, including children and how you've been able to display resilience to recover from setbacks and keep a positive frame of mind.

For more information on the specific responsibilities of the role, please read the Job Description Form (JDF) which is attached to the advertisement on www.jobs.wa.gov.au.

Whilst the mandatory vaccinations have been phased out, all other COVID-safe measures at prisons, work camps, the Detention Centre and the Corrective Services Academy remain in place. This includes surgical mask wearing & RAT testing prior to entry if required.

Selection Assessments

- Notification regarding the outcome of each stage of the recruitment process will be sent to applicants via email. It is essential you regularly check your emails to monitor the progress of your application. Applicants who are deemed unsuccessful at any stage of the selection process may be excluded from further assessments

Applicants will be required to participate in assessments on short notice following their application submission.

Stage 1 Shortlisting

Your CV/resume and on-line application responses incorporating the requested information will be assessed to determine whether you are shortlisted for further assessment. Consideration will be given to eligibility requirements as outlined in the JDF and in the job advertisement.

Stage 2 Psychometric testing

You will be invited to complete an online aptitude test, a comprehensive personality questionnaire, a situational judgement testing assessment and a computer literacy assessment.

Psychometric testing is designed to assess your cognitive and psychological suitability for the role, and work style preferences.

Stage 3 Physical Readiness Test

You will be required to successfully complete a physical readiness test, upon receipt of a satisfactory medical clearance from your doctor. The medical clearance from your doctor is at your own expense.

We recommend preparing as soon as possible to meet the physical readiness standards. These can be found attached to the job advertisement.

Stage 4 Selection panel interview

A selection panel will ask a series of questions relevant to the role designed to elicit information about your skills, knowledge and abilities against the job related requirements (JRRs) (detailed in the JDF).

You will be allowed time prior to your interview to read through the interview questions to consider and prepare your responses.

For further information please review the Australian Human Rights Commission website <https://www.humanrights.gov.au/our-work/childrens-rights/national-principles-child-safe-organisations> and <https://www.humanrights.gov.au/our-work/childrens-rights/projects/child-safe-organisations> .

We recommend you consider the following points in preparation for your interview:

- Be familiar with the role and job related requirements outlined in the JDF
- Consider the job related requirements and think of specific examples of situations where you have applied the relevant skills and abilities
- Focus on the duties of the position and how they should be carried out, consider problems that might be encountered and how they would be resolved
- Be punctual and appropriately attired – neat and professional
- Take time to answer each question and present answers clearly and concisely
- Review and understand Child Safe Principles
- Use the interview to ask any questions that you may have in relation to the position.

Stage 5 Medical assessment and psychological interview

Medical assessment

The duties of a Youth Custodial Officer can be physical at times and may involve running, bending, lifting heavy objects and being able to navigate around obstacles in tight spaces. Youth Custodial Officers may need to use self-defence and control or restraint techniques during a critical incident. The medical assessment is therefore designed to assess your overall health status and whether you have any medical conditions which may impede your ability to safely perform the duties of a Youth Custodial Officer.

Aspects of the medical assessment may include (but are not limited to):

- Musculoskeletal health
- Vision – a binocular vision of 6/9 or better is required. If visual aids are needed, soft contact lenses are preferred as they are not as easily dislodged compared to other visual aids
- Hearing
- Respiratory – a history of asthma will be carefully examined
- Cardiovascular health
- General health and well-being

Psychological interview

You will be required to attend an interview with a registered psychologist. Be prepared to answer questions about yourself including your work, family and social life, some of which may be more personal than you would expect in a normal job interview. Interviews may take up to one hour. It is recommended that you adhere to normal interview protocol, including appropriate attire. If you are scheduled for a telephone interview, ensure that you are in a quiet and private area.

Any recommendations from the interviewing psychologist will be considered by the Decision Panel that will make the final determination of your suitability.

Stage 6 Criminal history and integrity check

All Department of Justice employees are required to undergo a national criminal history check. You will be provided with the relevant forms. It is important you ensure the personal information you provide is correct. Providing false or misleading information can negatively impact the outcome of your application.

In positions that involve working with offenders, applicants are also required to undertake an integrity check. This may include investigations into suspension from employment, past employment records and performance, workers' compensation, spent convictions and pending charges.

A previous criminal conviction or pending charge will not necessarily preclude a person from being employed with the Department. The Department of Justice assesses each case based on its merits.

Please be aware that this check may be performed again (also referred to as re-screening) before employment is offered.

Stage 7 Reference checks

You are asked to provide the names and contact details for at least two relevant work-related referees. It is recommended you select current and former supervisors who can comment on your skills and abilities relevant to the position.

It is important you ensure your referees are aware they may be contacted by the Department and are willing and available to provide a referee report on your behalf.

Stage 8 Decision panel review

The Decision Panel typically comprises of various executive and operational stakeholders, human resources personnel, training staff and psychologists. They are responsible for making a holistic assessment of each applicant's suitability, based on all the information obtained throughout the selection process.

You will be formally notified in writing about the outcome of your application once the selection process is finalised. Notifications for all successful and unsuccessful applicants will be sent via email and will include information on how to seek feedback, which can help you to understand how the panel made their decision.

Working with Children Act 2004 (WWC Act)

The position of Youth Custodial Officer is identified under section 6 of the WWC Act as 'child related work'. All new employees who work with children, as defined under the WWC Act must be successfully screened prior to the commencement of work.

Appointment pool

If you are deemed suitable by the Decision Panel you will be placed into an appointment pool. An appointment pool is valid for 12 months, during which time you can be considered for an upcoming Entry Level Training Program. Being recommended to the appointment pool does not guarantee a job offer.

Applicants are obliged to notify the Department if an event occurs, they suspect may affect their suitability or eligibility for the position while in the appointment pool. For example, an applicant may subsequently obtain a criminal conviction or acquire a long-term illness or injury while awaiting an offer of appointment. Where an applicant fails to maintain their eligibility, the Department may withdraw the applicant from the pool.

Training

The Entry Level Training Program (ELTP) is a full-time 13 week course held at the Training Academy, which is located at 4 Allen Court, Bentley, WA 6102. The training is nationally accredited and successful participants will be awarded a CSC30122 Certificate III in Correctional Practice (Youth Custodial).

The ELTP provides participants with skills and knowledge designed to prepare them to commence duties as a Youth Custodial Officer. This is followed by a probation period where competency-based on-the-job assessments are undertaken.
